Description

Use Medium.com style (e.g.

<https://medium.com/@emilymenonbender/thought-experiment-in-the-national-library-of-thailand-f2bf761a8a83>) font (for headings and text), background and white space.

Heading H1: Don't know a term used in the video? ChatGPT can't help you!

Content follows:

Wait, what! ChatGPT cannot help?!

At the very least, it should not be the go to destination always.

It is not just because ChatGPT's creator told Forbes that ChatGPT can hallucinate and make up wrong information. Which is the same thing that Google's CEO told Fortune. More on this later.

Not everyone means exactly the same thing by a term. So, if you don't know a term, get the explanation from the video's author herself or himself – not from ChatGPT which will at best give you a generic explanation.

But then, has the author explained this term anywhere? How to search for this?

No worries. No need to search. Video Hyperlinker is a browser extension that does exactly this. If the author has explained the term, a hyperlink will be available right on the screen as you are watching the video. And that hyperlink will take you to the precise moment in the exact video. Moreover, it is certified safe by experts.

Add a new routing module i.e. 'Blog' inside the 'website.routing.module(views/website)'. Add all the theme related stuff like heading, background, content css, add it in the blog content. So, it will be generic for all the blog pages.

Inside Blog module, add a new 'dont-know-a-term-used-in-the-video-chatgpt-cant-help-you' component which will have the content that will be connected with the blog.html
